LEADING EVANGELISM

EVANGELIST INVENTORY

THE INVENTORY

Like all inventories, this one isn't a fool proof way of discerning whether you have the gift of evangelist. Rather it is a guide to help you explore the possibility. Ideally read 'How do we identify evangelists' before completing this inventory.

Please answer the questions honestly, instinctively and fully. Don't answer how you would like things to be, but how they really are. Don't take too long; go with your gut reaction. You may find it frustrating to be limited to only three options, but go with the one closest to what you think about yourself. Don't miss any question out, answer them all.

Once you've completed it, ideally give copies of it to three people who know you well and ask them to answer it on your behalf.

Before you begin, answer the following questions.

- Do you think of yourself as an evangelist? If yes, why? If no, why not?
- Do others talk about you being an evangelist? If yes, when and how has this happened?
- What would convince you, you are an evangelist?
- What would convince you, you aren't an evangelist?

Common Characteristics of Evangelists

The numbers in the left column relate to five common characteristics of evangelists:

1. Concern for people outside the Church.
2. Ability to relate to people outside the Church.
3. Ability to explain an aspect of Christian truth.
4. Ability to help people take the next appropriate spiritual step.
5. Indebtedness to the grace of God.

Public Proclaimer Evangelists

	Not at all like me	Partly like me	Very like me
I long to communicate the gospel through public speaking.
People tell me I am good at speaking to a group or crowd.
I like grappling with how to make sense of the Christian message.
I can speak publicly with clarity.
I can use the visual arts to communicate the Christian message to a group of people.
I can connect the Christian message with contemporary issues.
When I am in front of an audience I know that I am doing what God has gifted me to do.
People tell me that I make sense of the Christian faith for them.
People tell me that I make the Christian faith relevant.
People tell me that they've become a Christian through my communication of the Christian message.

Leader Evangelists

	Not at all like me	Partly like me	Very like me
In a group of people I am often the one to influence others.
I enjoy shaping the direction of where things are going.
I want to change the church to be more focused on evangelism.
I long to equip others to share the faith.
I am often seen as a leader.
When I am in a group and it is going nowhere I can't help myself taking over.
I like to ensure that in corporate prayer there is a clear focus on those who don't know Christ.
I am able to inspire people with a sense of a better future to head towards.
I long to develop others as evangelists.
I can't understand why the church spends so much time on matters other than evangelism.
I think it would be good to start the church again with a clearer focus on those who aren't yet Christians.

One-to-One Evangelists

		Not at all like me	Partly like me	Very like me
	I love helping people come to faith.
	I find myself often talking to individuals about Jesus.
	When there is an evangelistic event at our church I try to find someone to take along with me.
	I feel it is quite natural to talk about spiritual things.
	I like to share what I believe.
	I have contrived situations so not yet Christians ask spiritual questions.
	Over the years many of my friends have come to faith.
	I expect opportunities for witnessing to arise rather than react in surprise when they occur.
	I find non-Christians ask me questions about my faith.
	I look for opportunities to socialise with non-Christians.
	Non-Christians note that they feel comfortable around me and I have a positive effect on them developing faith.
	I sometimes sense the Holy Spirit prompting me to speak to a specific individual.
	I find myself praying for those who aren't yet Christians.
	I am really concerned that people I know will not be saved.
	I often tell people about my own journey to faith.

FOR REFLECTION

Having answered all the questions take time to reflect on what you notice about your answers, and, if you have asked others to complete the inventory with you in mind, how your response agrees with or differs with the response of others.

Ideally take your reflections into a conversation with a friend or mentor and explore:

- How do you see yourself as an evangelist having done this inventory?
- Which of the three types of evangelist most resonated with you?
- How could you grow and develop as an evangelist?
- What prayer might you pray (and invite others to pray for you) about your ministry as an evangelist?
- What one thing are you going to do as a result of the conversation?
